The Beer Problem
The Debt Question
Poor Old Pound
Any Johnson Hope
—By Arthur Brisbane—

WASHINGTON IS LOOKING around for something else to tax, because the "beer tax will not provide enough money." It will not, indeed, if gauding alteration of the prohibition law enters into its sale. You can tax only what is sold.

New York talks of making over the big Hippodrome into an imitation German "beer garden." A good imitation would not earn enough to pay half the taxes or a quarter. In German beer gardens people sip beer. They must POUR IT DOWN if Uncle Sam is to get five hundred millions in taxes.

In the old days, that make us shudder, men stood elbow to elbow and sometimes three and four deep in front of Andy Horn's bar at the Brooklyn Bridge entrance. The bar was swimming in beer, a foam here, a ripple there, in perspiration, heavy beer glasses, with handles on the sides, were ten times as high as autumnal leaves in Valhalla, or anywhere else.

One Washington dispatch suggests that this government will give Europe another "debt holiday" of three months. It is for Governor Roosevelt to decide after that.

Another Washington correspondent believes this administration will say to Europe, "Pay your December installment, and we shall talk over the debt afterward." The next installment will come after March 4, and then the "buck" would be passed to Governor Roosevelt.

It would seem good Republican policy to collect now and lift that much from the debt. Republican spending. Republicans know that other elections are coming.

Britain's pound sterling, in another fainting fit yesterday, fell to $2.27 1/2 at noon. London, we wagging a heavy head, says it will not be better than it is for Governor Roosevelt to decide after that.

Two bad, bad, wagging our heads, we remark that the United States can stand a drop in the dollar sterling better than it can stand the loss of eleven billion dollars. Also, our noble dollar, while the war was on, was worth only 50 cents in Spain, and far less in China. Nevertheless, it came back. Great Britain's pound will do the same, and if the pound should fall to three or two dollars, Great Britain, theoretically, could save all our lives by paying back her own sterling obligations very cheaply.

There is no ill feeling toward any foreign country in this. The whole question is, who should pay the eleven billion dollars? The people that borrowed it from us, "their backs to the wall" in war, or the taxpayers of the United States?

What do you think the nations of Europe would say and do if conditions were reversed?

Any Johnson ended her hop from London to Cape Town, South Africa, establishing a new record on the 4200-mile trip by beating her husband's record by 10 hours. Prussia, her mentally and morally. For your private information her real name is Mrs. Any Johnson Molson. But Mrs. Ruth Mier, whose real name is in the eye of the law is Mrs. Heywood Brown. Arrives that she doesn't want Mrs. Molson called "Mrs." or "Molson."

Any command from a lady is obeyed, but this old-fashioned column believes it is a good thing for women to take their husband's names. Then in case they have a good son they get the credit of it. If Abraham Lincoln's mother were alive she would not want to be called "Nancy Hanks."

She would say, "Please call me Mrs. Lincoln. I want my name signed forever to that fine boy of mine."

45,000 IN RAIN-SOAKED BOWL SEE ELL PASSES ROOT CRIMSON

By BILL GRIMES
Yale Bowl, Nov. 19.—Playing under the worst weather conditions in eight years Yale defeated Harvard 19 to 0 here this afternoon. Not only was this the worst setback Harvard had suffered here in more than a decade, but it was the first time the Crimson has failed to score in the Bowl.

From the start to the finish the game was played in a heavy rain which, although a handicap to both teams, apparently had a greater effect on Harvard.

Walter Laverne scored two of Yale's three touchdowns while the last was a result of a forward pass from Bob Luster to Bud Parker.

During the first half Harvard had two chances to score but failed in both attempts.

A crowd of only 15,000 fans saw the battle and consequently were out of the deluge.

Rival Teams Need Lifebelts as They Battle in Deluge

By RILEY GRANNON

1. The $4.00 sock for a raincoat seat.

2. Just a couple of ordinary football players.

3. Old man depression.

Tack Harwick, former Harvard football star, was among the first to slip into the deluge. And telling everybody that the Eddie Casey's Harvard coached team would win.

There were several pools of water on the playing field despite the fact canvas had been used in an effort to keep the field dry.

They rolled back the canvas at 12:30 p. m. after which the clouds opened up and dropped a couple of million gallons on the brave crack squads.

The ushers were drenched up like veterans New Bedford whalers starting out for the south seas. And how they shivered.

The young man who takes your license away from you if you do this and that on the highway, was at the game accompanied by a beautiful young lady. "Will you and Mrs. Ryan pose for picture?" asked a press photographer. "We'll pose," replied the Registrar as he turned as seconds do to the young lady who was of his inspection. "But we're not married." Ryan is still a bachelor.

It was the first time since 1924 that Harvard and Yale men bumped into a rain storm for their football game. Back in 1928 Dudley Field pulled over a rain-soaked field for 73 yards and a touchdown. And Bill Mulholland kicked a couple of points from the field.

Of course you could get a start of what you cared for in New Ha-

HOVER CABINET IN EXTRA SESSIONS TRIMS BUDGET

SAVING OF 500 MILLIONS AIM OF PRESIDENT

Mills Promises Estimates That the Democrats Will Find Hard to Reduce

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—President Hoover summoned an extraordinary meeting of his cabinet today and for nearly two hours went over the budget estimates, seeking avenues to economies.

At the end, Secretary of the Treasury Mills informed correspondents that "budget estimates much below last year's" would be submitted to Congress by the President next month.

Last year's budget was approximately $13,500,000,000. Mills said with expenditures about $2,000,000,000 more.

MILLS' STATEMENT

"I told Joe Byrnes (Rep. Byrnes, chairman of the appropriations committee) that we were going to send him some estimates that he would find hard to reduce," continued the treasury head.

"What economies are going to be effected?" Mills was asked.

"Well, and so," he replied. "They will all be made."

"What about the estimates he has been making?"

"Much below."

BROWN PLEDGES CUT

Most of the other cabinet members left the White House desiring to comment about their department and referring questions to Secretary Mills.

Postmaster General Brown, however, said he had told the President that his department proposed to save $1,000,000, and Secretary of the Interior Wilbur mentioned a saving of $3,000,000 in his department. Neither was specific as to how these savings are to be accomplished.

J. Clawson Hump, director of the budget, said in the cabinet meeting he had sent over preliminary estimates with the members.

$300,000,000 CUT GOAL

Prior to today's session, it became known that the goal upon which the administration has its eye is a retrenchment of $300,000,000 in federal expenditures by the end of the fiscal year 1933.

Apparently no definite decision has been reached as to whether Mr. Hoover is to recommend to Congress additional tax legislation. In some quarters, however, it is considered certain that the short session will be asked to provide greater revenue in one form or another for the present deficit is in excess of $700,000,000 and still mounting.

Even a retrenchment program of $300,000,000 would not take care of that.

Cohasset Boy, 14, Admits House Breaks

An investigation of six weeks into numerous house breaks and burglaries in Cohasset haven ended today with the arrest of a 14-year-old boy, a resident of the town, by Police Chief DeLester. The boy admitted the breaks, which netted him a total of about $75 in cash. He was arraigned in juvenile court and given into the custody of his parents when the case was continued until December 3.

Dies at Theater

Shock was blamed today for the death of Mrs. Flora Brown, 68, of Parkside st., South End, who collapsed last night in a downtown theater.

We'll Know Next Week

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Way south in 1775 this country headed itself a big dilemma.

But we don't seem to have graduated yet.

We're still tied up with Europe and our diplomats are making more funny noises than a child's photographer.

Next week Mr. Roosevelt will dine with Mr. Hoover and the Republican administration will pass the border position.

Those incontinent spuds are the grumbling's arguments between Washington and Europe. The reason Washington is unleashing them on the Democrats is the same reason the barber slapped the red-hot towel on the customer's face. It was too hot to hold.

We've been up against government with the shades down. Now, the Democrats are going to get a look at the books and add up the hotels. We advise them to also count the five Crow's also while they're absent. One might be missing.

JAPAN POINTS TO PANAMA IN OWN DEFENSE

U. S. Creation of New State Is Cited as Ground for Setting Up Manchukuo

Tokio, Nov. 19 (AP)—It was officially learned today that Japan will remind the council of the League of Nations next week that Manchukuo is not the first state separated from its parent state and given independence through the actions of another power.

This argument will be contained in Japanese answer to the Lytton report on Manchuria, which will be made public tomorrow night, an official told the Associated Press today.

"I cannot affirm," the informant said, "the assertion in various newspapers that our reply to the Lytton report will cite Panama and Ethiopia in this connection, but certainly Panama is one of the incidents we had in mind. I can assure you, however, the portion of the document is nowise contraindicated by derogatory to the United States."

ANOTHER LYTTON REPORT

The document will be Japan's brief answer to the Lytton commission, which investigated Manchuria and criticized Japanese action there. It is in the form of a 76-page pamphlet when printed in English.

The document emphatically rejects the proposal of the Lytton commission that Japan should give up sovereignty over Manchuria and some degree of international cooperation for the solution of that vexatious problem.

These proposals were declared incompatible with what Japan considers the fundamental fact of Manchukuo's independence, upon which she stands immovable.

CONTROL OF CHINA

Concerning the Lytton report suggestion that international cooperation might enable China to put her house in order, the Japanese document declares that such an effort is futile unless the powers assume full control of China. That was passed the question of whether the powers are willing to go that far.

The official informant said Japan prefers consideration of the Lytton report to be confined to the League council, but saw little chance of preventing its admission to the assembly, where the small nations could make things unpleasant.

Nevertheless Japan is hopeful. It was said that a head-on collision with the League will be avoidable, and that the outcome of impending diplomatic and forensic battles at Geneva will be more favorable toward Japan than majority of the nations expected to expect.

HITLER IN LONG PARLEY WITH HINDENBURG

Nazi Leader Emerges Smiling; Will See President Again on Next Tuesday About Cabinet

Berlin, Nov. 19 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, making what may be his most powerful bid for leadership in the German government, talked for an hour today with President Paul von Hindenburg, emerged with a broad smile and let it be known that he would see the President again next Tuesday.

Persons close to the President said the meeting was "extraordinarily cordial" and there was a prevailing feeling in political circles that the day's conference and those which are to follow may produce a "national concentration" cabinet in which Hitler's National Socialists will have an important part.

Last August when the President received Hitler for the first time, the Nazi leader made a blunt statement for the chancellorship of nothing. He was turned down and an interview lasted only 15 minutes.

After he left the palace today Hitler went into conference with his personal advisers, Gregor Strasser, Herman Goerring, Capt. Ernst Roehm and Dr. Otto Wagener, his economic adviser.

The trim brown-shirted Nazi was received in audience by the President at 11:30 a. m. and there was ample evidence he was given full opportunity to state his case.

A communique was issued at the end of the conference that the new cabinet could be continued within the next few days.

This confirmed the impression that the long talks had finally opened the way for the cooperation of powerful forces representative of President von Hindenburg on the one hand and Hitler on the other, forces which have stood in opposition to each other heretofore.

Chicago, Nov. 19—Dr. E. H. Carey of Dallas, president of the American Medical Association, in an address here criticized the proposed medical care contracts of the federal government.

He said the contracts were "a denial of the right of the physician to practice his profession in a free and unhampered manner."

RECOUNT ASKED TO SET TLE BET?

There will be no recount in Ward 6 of Quincy's vote for mayor yesterday, but there will be a pro-se investigation of the reason for filing the recount petition. City Clerk K. L. Crane said today that the city would not set the time for filing a new one has slipped, but that the city would set the time for filing a new one has slipped.

NAVY YARD TO CLOSE US IN

Navy yards at Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., and other points along the coast will soon close under the plan of government economy. This was learned today in Washington as secret plans of the navy department became known.

Yards at New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk are the only ones that will escape. It was learned in the move that it is to save the government approximately $2,300,000.

The closings at Boston and Portsmouth if they are not balked before final plans are released at the navy office, will affect thousands of skilled and unskilled workers.

A further saving for economy in the navy department is underway with a proposed reduction in civilian personnel. At present there are 40,000 persons employed in a civilian capacity with the navy department.

The closing of the Portsmouth yard is seen in many quarters as a direct result of the vote in New Hampshire that resulted in the defeat of United States Senator George H. Moore. The hour and a half vote in the state of New Hampshire is believed to have reflected on the navy yard at Portsmouth, in spite of the fact that several large projects are already assigned there.

Only recently, orders were received for work on two destroyers, and that the department has returned to work of a large force of workers who had been turned out of the navy yard some months ago, has yet to start.

DEFINITE AUTO FIRM HAS UP

Final reports of the receivers appointed four years ago to handle the affairs of the collapsed Car Owners' Mutual Insurance Co. were approved today by Justice Pierce of Supreme Court.

The reports signed by Donald E. Moore and Philip H. O'Brien, receivers, and Martin White, legal adviser, revealed that claims totaling over $100,000 had been settled by adjustment, 100 per cent of the claims for $100,000, and 70 per cent on personal injury claims.

The receivers and legal adviser received approximately $100,000 in fees during the four years.

Son Missing 3 Months Heads Plea of Dying Mother

A son missing for three months today answered the plea of his mother who was stricken. The last rites of the church were administered last yesterday, and her probable deathbed wish was to see her son return for her funeral.

There was no hope, however, that she can survive, physicians say, until the return of her son, Anna Lee, 24, who was found last night in a rooming house in the city.

MISS COLTON'S REQUESTS $375,000

Personnel requests in relatives, friends and employees, amounting to $315,000, and public bequests totaling $60,000, were made in the will of Miss Elizabeth A. Colton of Brookline, daughter of the founder of the American Tube Co. She was 34 years old when she died at the age of 34, in 1931.

Her estate at Kent and Beacon Hills, Brookline, where she had withdrawn the encumbrance of her home, and apart from the $315,000, will be sold, leaving the balance, where she still kept some of the time of her life, to be left intact.

The value of the real and personal property of the deceased is $375,000.

PAINTINGS TO MUSEUM
Paintings of which there will be more than 100, which are known to be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, are left to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

THE RELUCTANT DRAGON" is the Junior League entertainment committee's choice for the children's play which they will produce at the Repertory Theater in the Christmas holidays.

Every year Boston's younger generation looks forward to these performances in which the acting, costume, scenic design and lighting is done entirely by Junior League members. The rise of the first curtain at the Repertory Theater will be on Tuesday, December 27, at 2:15; on Wednesday, the 28th there will be two performances and one again on the 29th.

Edith Parker, known for her historical inspirations in Vincent Club and former Junior League theatricals, is chairman of the entertainment committee. She will coach the play and supervise production. Jane Bancroft will be her assistant.

Handles Business Details
JANE MEGREW AS SECRETARY will devote herself to the major business details. Miss Megrew will also arrange rehearsals which are now in progress at the Junior League clubhouse.

The programs will be the work of Miss Clara Dupe, who is sending out a corps of members to collect advertisements.

EDITH PARKER has been called upon to exert her flare for scenic designing for "The Reluctant Dragon".

Miss Constance Learned will handle the ticket end and she announces that prices are considerably lower than in the past. The patronage group is in the capable hands of Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Jr., and the MYRIAD details that come under the head of publicity will be handled by Mrs. Robert C. Terry.

Emma G. Sterne, authors of "The Reluctant Dragon," received the $300 award by Boston's Bookshop for Boys and Girls and Junior Leagues in New England and Montreal, for the best children's play.

Social Service Fund to Benefit

IT IS THE STORY of a beautiful blue and green dragon, Alexander Augustus... the strange title comes from the fact that he refuses to fight. A gallant St. George, a lovable old circus performer and two modern English children are conspicuous characters in the latter part.

It is the aim of the Junior League players to present a high type of educational plays for children. The League feels that their own social service work and their two community health nurses, which are entirely financed from the proceeds are particularly vital in this time of stress.

The Red Stocking committee is still one of the major Christmas charities of the Junior League. This year under the direction of Miss Constance Young of Duxbury, the committee is staging an intensive campaign to break all past records for contributions received and aid given. The committee exists solely for the purpose of helping needy families during the Christmas season... distributing greens to those sections of the city where they will do most to provide cheer for these families.

Members emphasize the fact that, owing to conditions, the need for this particular service is greater than ever before.

Large Portion Spent for Essentials

THE COMMITTEE KEEPS in close touch with all sources of information regarding needy cases and employs the funds which it collects in giving the greatest possible assistance. The larger portion is spent in providing the essentials, food and clothing, at a time when these in need are likely to be most destitute.

A small portion of the money collected is spent for small Christmas trees, holly, evergreen streamers and mistletoe. These decorations are placed in the Boston Public Library and settlement houses. The settlement houses themselves and other groups which are in direct contact with the poor, communicate with the Red Stocking committee, placing orders for trees and greens which they use in the public rooms of their buildings and which are also sent to families which otherwise could not afford them.

Money is also placed at the disposal of hospitals to be used in the purchase of useful gifts for children who are confined to their beds.

MRS. R. C. TERRY It is the distribution of Christmas decorations and the fact that its activities are limited altogether to the Christmas season that chiefly distinguish the Red Stocking Committee from other charity organizations.

Spread Spirit of Christmas

MEMBERS FEEL THAT DESPITE the fact that holly can neither be eaten nor worn, there is a great need for carrying the spirit of Christmas into places that would otherwise be full of nothing but bitterness and sorrow.

Boston, without a community chest or any other central charity group, is forced to depend on the efforts of individual organizations to distribute the money which it wishes to give to aid unfortunate persons.

No one with the natural human impulse to prevent hardship and suffering at the time of year which should be happiest, can make a mistake in forwarding to the Red Stocking Committee a thousand dollars, or a penny... whatever he feels able to give for such a purpose.

Series Opens at Algonquin Club Dec. 5

Of interest to a large number of bridge players will be the announcement of a series of lectures to be given at the Algonquin Club on December 5 and 6 by Mr. Edward C. Wolfe, a nationally recognized authority, and an associate editor of the Bridge World, and a member of the All-American Championship Team in 1930.

Each lecture will deal with a specific part of the science of the game, beginning with the first at 2:30 p. m. on Monday followed by the second at 8 o'clock in the evening with the remaining two at the same times on the following day.

Mr. Wolfe is making his first appearance in Boston at the invitation of a committee who have arranged the course in the interests of the Boston Children's Friend Society, which is in benefit from the sale of the tickets.

The committee consists of Mrs. William C. Clark, Mrs. Thomas M. Clifton of 372 Dean rd., Brookline, who is in charge of the sale of tickets, Mrs. Richard Ward, and Mrs. George Leighton.

A number of reservations have already been made by well known bridge players of this city but the limited number of seats have been set aside for the general public.

True to Type Disgusted Reader Calls Us

All Hypocrites

By GILBERT SELDES

A "disgusted reader" wants to know whether we are all a bunch of hypocrites, or rather, he doesn't want to know, he's telling us, adding the word "infernal." "All along," he says, "you have been moaning because Mr. Hoover has been unable to obtain jobs for the jobless." And such that in a recent column of mine I pointed out "that it is impossible to muster for the unemployed in less than from three to five years. This is just another way of saying that Mr. Roosevelt cannot do in one Presidential term what you expected Mr. Hoover to do in a few months."

Before going into the basic argument let me restate my position. You can do a great deal for the unemployed, not only through charity but by creating the economic and credit situation in which there will be jobs in a week, a month and a year. What I said was that unemployment had been slower to move than such an extent in three years that you cannot completely absorb the ten or twelve million all in one year or two.

The disgusted reader has a bad memory. No one expected Mr. Hoover to accomplish miracles in a few months. The Wall Street crash took place 37 months ago and in spite of a rally about not reducing wages, in a half year or so unemployment quickly followed. By the end of winter 1930—two and a half years ago—there was a serious problem.

Because people talked about keeping up wages—by which they meant to keep the scale of the business given that payrolls hadn't been slashed but they were slashed and what is more, workers were laid off or put on part time. It was in 1930 and not in 1932, that the effort should have been made to check unemployment. Something was done—and it was not entirely inadequate. Mr. Roosevelt has no control of black magic; he isn't even a Mussolini; he will certainly not solve the problem of unemployment in two months and his whole term will pass in the advantage of electing him was that he had no commitments—and seemed to be aware of the gravity of the situation. Toward the end of the summer he gave his plans to prove themselves worthy; he has not produced either an upturn or a superficial flourish which would have saved his votes.

Roosevelt on Relief

As an immediate relief: The first principle is that this nation owes a positive duty that no one is permitted to neglect. This means that while the immediate responsibility for relief rests with local, public and private charity, in so far as they are inadequate the State must carry the burden; but whenever the States are unable adequately to do so, the Federal Government owes the positive duty of stepping into the breach.

This is the relief. Mr. Roosevelt has spoken in similar terms of employment. He has never attempted to belittle the misery of unemployment as Mr. Hoover did when he tried to whittle away the figures and two years after the crash asked us to believe that laborers still

Eyes Front!

It is because Mr. Roosevelt has no past to defend, no artificial system to cherish and no commitments to outworn ideas, that he gives hope as a leader out of the depression. The signs favor him; he may have been elected right at the turn. But his will still have an enormous burden to carry; he cannot liquidate the mistakes of 12 years of prosperity in the twinkling of an eye. In fact, it occurs to me that this is no time for eye-winking or for the eye can be closed for a better purpose, which is to look at the situation without blinking.

Books...And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

Browning, Longfellow and comes down to our own day with Dorothy Parker, Alfred Noyes, Mark Twain, Milly and many others. Moreover, he has supplied numerous comments which are of particular value to the student.

He says that "the difference between prose and poetry is not merely one of form; it is also one of aim and spirit. That it is not altogether easy to tell the two apart, all readers will admit. For instance, the prose of De Quincey is at times highly poetic and if broken up into the irregular lines of free verse, would be accepted as poetry."

Then he gives us a passage from "Lovers and Our Ladies of Solow" to prove his point, and follows with a selection from "The Essay on Man," stating that "this may be good verse, but it is poor poetry. The lines quoted are those of well-known, ending with the couplet:

"And, spite of pride, in erring race, / One truth is clear, whatever is, is right."

We agree with Pope intellectually that the universe is marvelously designed, but our feelings—the heart—are touched. The same message in prose would have made about as good an appeal. It is the province of poetry, especially in form of verse, to awaken our imaginations. Unquestionably, by this text, De Quincey has written poetry and Pope has written poetry and Pope has written poetry and Pope has written poetry.

A Great Sonnet

It is good to see Lisette Wolff, of Boston's great "Tears," included here, not among the sonnets, but under the heading of "Some Great Themes of Poetry." That is good editing. There is scarcely a finer sonnet in our language, unless one excepts, of course, the sonnet by Mrs. Millicent B. Alana Has Looked on Beauty Rare, with the concluding lines: "O binding hour, O holy territory, / When first the shaft into his vision shone."

Light Verse

Among the light verse, which Mr. Lieberman's selection is excellent, and he has some kindly words for the French verse forms, considering the ballade at its best a fascinating language is not beautiful in rhyming words, but the French language, particularly the musical French of Provence, is unusually rich in them. The poets of that happy land were naturally facile and given to easy improvisation. It is refreshing to find H. C. Bunner's old rhyme called, "Pitcher of Mignonette." A pitcher of mignonette— / Quenched a flower-pot— / That pitcher of mignonette / Is given to me— / "To the little pink child in the basement." The pitcher of mignonette, / In a tenement's highest eaves, / One perfect rose.

One perfect rose, pure, with scented dew— / One perfect rose, / I knew the language of the flower: / "My fragile leaves," it said, "this Low long has taken for his smut / One perfect rose." Why is it no more sent me? / One perfect Immortal, do you suppose / Ah, no, I always just my luck to see / One perfect rose. (Copyright, 1932)

WORSE OFF WITH

HIS RENO DIVORCE

THAN WITHOUT IT.

MARRIAGE has always been a lottery. But divorce is now becoming a gamble, too—especially those nice, quick, convenient divorces from Reno.

It seems that the risk taken by a man who shoots at a sleeping tigress is no greater than that of one who divorces his wife at Reno without her approval and consent. Heaven help him if there is any mistake, in either case.

One man recently tried to get rid of his wife and escape paying her $8 a week by getting a Reno divorce. He got the divorce but must now pay her $200 a week, as explained in a thrilling account of the case in next Sunday's American Weekly. Read this startling story!

If Nature Had Built Us Like This

ALL of us, at one time or another, have heard it said that it is difficult to improve on Nature. But is this actually a fact?

Curious photographic distortions, that may help you decide, are shown in an exceptionally interesting article that appears in next Sunday's American Weekly.

See for Yourself!

Look for this article. It shows how Nature might have constructed the human body. See if you agree that some of the suggested changes would be helpful.

SPECTATOR—

Says:

TODAY'S NEWS OF WALL ST. LEADERS

As the old parable goes, the market is willing but the spirit is weak. There are still a few who cling to the hope of a November rise.

We must say, though, that stocks had better snap out of it pretty soon or they will be up against the usual year-end unsettling factors, including the session of Congress.

However, Congress can do the pretty thing this time by modifying the Valued law and passing a sales tax, thus balancing the budget.

Here and There

We hear that R. L. C. has $50,000 for advertising in his fight to get control of aviation Delaware. Regarding some of the bankers' tales as prospective securities of the Treasury, one banker here said there was a banker in the country who could afford to take the job.

Bond Outlook

There is talk of a real bond market next month, based on the outpour of cash in the banks. Firmness in bonds this week lends some hope to this. Apparently the big supporting factor in Cash Treasuries is that it is such a "cheap" about as far as the little stock around that it gets evened out.

Public Service Yield Favored

Devoted to the regular dividend of Public Service of New Jersey made its current yield on the common of approximately 4.5 per cent quite attractive. Although the Public Service of New Jersey, the stability of the dividend is a good thing. Reports as far as this year show that the decline in the common stock price at $11.50 per share has been a good deal higher.

Iron and Steel Average Unchanged

The Dow Jones average price of iron and steel products, based on the 1000-ton lot, remained unchanged during the week at $11.50 a ton.

NO BARRAGE WISE MADE IN ALL DEALINGS

New York, Nov. 19.—Leading prices on the New York stock exchange today made a moderate rise in dull dealings.

Once more the market found it a task to advance than to decline, but speculative enthusiasm was not able to overcome the narrow range during the earlier part of the session.

There was an upward swing in the last hour, with several issues rising about 1 1/2 points.

CLIMAX IS FIRM

The turnover for the November session, however, was only about 500,000 shares. The closing time was firm.

The bulk of the list in price a drop of 51,200 cents in the weekly largest freight carloadings, the period including the Labor Day holidays, evidently prompted their coming in the late dealings.

None of a character in the market was major, although several trade and business issues indicated that the autumn improvement was being fairly well maintained in view of the normal seasonal tendency at this time.

TRADING PROFESSIONAL

It was the first time this week that the list had been closed on the crest of a moderate rise.

As mentioned by price averages, the list had not shown much movement in the week, but throughout the period the market was fairly well maintained.

Several issues, however, have been left to the hands of professional and their efforts to attract a little trade were not without effect.

BOSTON STOCKS

Return to a Higher Level Is Favored

By MERVILLE STANLEY RUCKER

New York, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Boston stock market today showed a return to a higher level, with several issues rising about 1 1/2 points.

The turnover for the November session, however, was only about 500,000 shares. The closing time was firm.

TRADE BALANCE

Is Favorable

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The latest favorable trade balance for the month of the year was announced today by the commerce department, which said exports in October amounted to $150,000,000, while imports were $125,000,000.

The balance of $25,000,000 was better by $10,000,000 than October of last year.

The department's publication showed that the foreign trade reached the low point for the year in July, with $106,000,000 of exports and $134,000,000 of imports.

NEW HAVEN

NER $300,000

Indicators are that the New Haven Railroad will show for October a net profit of $300,000.

This would be more than double the September surplus of $150,000, and contrast with deficits of $100,000 in the two preceding months.

The figures are before operating expenses on separately reported accounts.

The nine months ending September 30, 1932, showed a net profit of $1,100,000, against a deficit of $1,200,000 in the same period of last year.

Decrease in Cotton Planting

Is Studied by Leaders

New Haven, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Cotton acreage has been decreased during the two past weeks, and it is still far from the average figure of 1931 when it averaged 1,200,000 acres.

The decrease in cotton planting is being studied by the New York Cotton Exchange, which has been organized, the level could afterwards be reasonably stable, if the world were agreed to limit the production of cotton.

Lake Erie Loadings

Of Coal Up Again

Coal loadings at Lake Erie docks were up again today, according to the third time this year showed an increase of the last week's year.
